Results of Operations

At June 30, 2022, CC&L High Yield Bond Fund (the “Fund”) held $99.1 million in total net assets. During the period, investors in Series A units in the Fund experienced a return of -12.45%. The benchmark for the Fund (30% Merrill Lynch US High Yield Cash Pay BB Index (CAD$) & 30% Merrill Lynch US High Yield Cash Pay BB Index (Hedged to CAD) & 30% FTSE Canada Corporate BBB Bond Index & 10% Merrill Lynch Canada BB-B High Yield Index) returned -11.79% over the period. The performance of the different series within the Fund will vary due to the differences in their expense structures. For specific returns by series, please refer to the “Past Performance” section of this report.

Virus anxieties dissipated in the first quarter of 2022, and were overtaken by a combination of heightened geopolitical tensions and exacerbated inflationary pressures. Russia invaded Ukraine in February, resulting in a significant humanitarian crisis and a surge in commodity prices, which compounded the stubbornly strong inflation releases that showed no signs of easing. This created a sense of urgency for monetary policymakers to bring inflation under control, and central banks kicked off their rate hiking cycles in the first quarter.

Persistently high and accelerating inflation remained the dominant theme in the second quarter. Measures of inflation surged to multi-decade highs, defying expectations of a deceleration. Monetary policymakers aggressively stepped up their tightening in an attempt to actively restrict economic growth to prevent the high rates of inflation from becoming engrained into consumer psychology. As a result, anxieties surrounding recession grew significantly in the second quarter. Market volatility erupted as investors grew increasingly concerned about the persistently high inflation and tightening in financial conditions, coupled with slowing economic momentum and increased recession risk. Equity markets plummeted, in many cases into bear market territory while bond yields surged globally. Shorter-term yields rose by more than 200 basis points (bps), while longer-term yields rose modestly less. Overall, the Bank of Canada (BoC) and the US Federal Reserve (Fed) raised their target interest rates by 125 bps and 150 bps, respectively, in the first six months of the year. High yield spreads widened meaningfully in the first half of the year, exceeding the wide levels in 2018, even as the pace of new issuance remained extremely slow. Higher quality paper outperformed, led by the BB-rated space while CCC-rated credit lagged. There were a number of defaults during the first half, causing the high yield default rate to tick higher, although from a record low level.

The Fund slightly lagged its benchmark in the first half of 2022. Security selection was positive, with overweight positions in select US leisure, telecommunications, and Canadian utilities companies, and an underweight position in US transportation company American Airlines. Sector allocation was generally underweight US credit and detracted. Within interest rate strategies, the duration position that was traded tactically, as well as a global relative value strategy that favoured Canadian bonds relative to US Treasuries, were each neutral.

Recent Developments

Inflation accelerated during the first half of the year, which kept monetary policymakers committed to their tightening plans. We expect policymakers to continue with interest rate increases until restrictive policy has been achieved, even with the prospect of slowing economic momentum. While inflation is likely to decelerate as commodity prices soften and higher interest rates moderate spending, it is likely to remain well above central bank targets. We expect economic growth to deteriorate and the risk of recession to rise as a result. While we don't anticipate a recession in 2022 given continued robust labour markets, we believe the likelihood of a recession in early 2023 has clearly increased.

(1) This information is provided as at June 30 or December 31 for the years shown.

(2) Management expense ratio is based on total expenses (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs) for the stated period and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

(3) The manager of the Fund, CC&L Funds Inc., waived certain fees or absorbed certain expenses otherwise payable by the Fund. The amount of expenses waived or absorbed is determined periodically on a series by series basis at the discretion of the manager and the manager can terminate the waiver or absorption at any time.

(4) The Fund's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's portfolio advisor manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the year. The higher a fund's portfolio turnover rate in a year, the greater the trading costs payable by the fund in the year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of a fund.

(5) The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

MANAGEMENT FEES

Management Fees

The Fund is managed by CFI. As consideration for providing investment advisory and management services, CFI receives a management fee from the Fund, based on the net asset value of the respective series, calculated daily and payable monthly in arrears. In respect of units of all series of the Fund other than Series I, the management fee is paid by the Portfolio to CFI. Management fees in respect of Series I units are arranged directly and charged outside the Portfolio. Management fees on Series I units are not expenses of the Portfolio. CFI uses a portion of management fees to pay for trailing commissions to registered dealers (if applicable) based on amounts invested in the Fund. CFI uses the remaining portion of the management fees to pay for investment advice, including fees charged by the Fund's portfolio manager, and general administration expenses and retains the balance for profit. The following table summarizes the annual management fee rates (excluding GST and HST) of each series of the Fund, expressed as a percentage of the Fund's value, and the portion used for dealer compensation and the portion used for or attributed to investment advice, general administration and profit.
